Retractable Technologies, Inc.'s VanishPoint® products virtually eliminate both syringe reuse and accidental needlestick injury to healthcare workers. Both can cause transmission of bloodborne diseases such as HIV, malaria, tuberculosis, and hepatitis.

The VanishPoint® syringe utilizes a patented friction ring mechanism that permits automated retraction of the needle into the barrel of the syringe, directly from the patient, after the medication is injected. The VanishPoint® blood collection tube holder similarly retracts the needle after blood has been drawn; this is accomplished by simply closing an attached end cap.
